KATE KEIDERLING NAMED DIRECTOR OF HUMAN RESOURCES AT OMG, INC.

AGAWAM, MASS., May 26 -- OMG, Inc. has appointed Kate Keiderling to the position of director of human resources and environmental health and safety (HR/EHS). In her new position, Kate is responsible for developing and executing strategies that continue to provide a culture that is safe, healthy, supportive, inclusive, open, and creative. In her new role, she will work closely with the senior management team to plan and execute business strategies that address corporate safety, our top priority, as well as effective personnel management. She is also responsible for improving the company's current HR/EHS structure, programs, and processes as necessary to support OMG employees and business goals. She reports to Hubert McGovern, president, and CEO of OMG.

"We are very happy that Kate has joined the OMG team," said McGovern. "She has extensive experience managing and implementing the types of programs that we are looking to strengthen, and a proven track record of success. She is a strong addition to team, and our management team is looking forward to working with her," said McGovern.

Kate joined OMG, Inc., from Paradigm Precision in Manchester, Conn., where she was director of HR for North America. Earlier she spent 16 years in various HR positions with Pratt & Whitney, most recently as associate director of HR for military engines. She also worked for The Travelers Insurance.

Kate holds a bachelor's degree from Elms College, and a master's degree in human resource development from American International College.
